THE MARDI GRAS BALL

wore a crown of gold spikes. A wide hat, turned up at one side and surmounted by a long white plume floating out behind, which he carried in his hand, and slippers.

A lively auction was held between 12 and 1 o'clock, the carnival posters being knocked down to the highest bidders. These posters have been on exhibition for some weeks, and were drawn by John Piver, the artist. As each poster was put up for sale enthusiastic bidding began, and a good round sum was realized from each.

Prince David was a leading bidder for a number of the posters, and the poster of the Hawaiian woman's head, which has attracted a good deal of attention on display in the shop windows, was secured by him at the cost of $25. With the order for unmasking, the doors of Companies C. D. and E's rooms were thrown open, disclosing the inviting refreshment tables, under bowers of evergreens and bunting. Ice cream and cake, sandwiches and coffee and lemonade were served by quick-handed Chinese to all who came, and the refreshment rooms became as popular as the ball room, which was a happy solution of the problem of overcrowding. The ball room was cleared to a comfortable number of dancers, and the terpsichorean pastime was indulged in with much less danger to tender toes.

THE GRAND JURY.

Inquisitorial Body Inspects Iwilei and Oahu Jail.

The Grand Jury investigated Iwilei yesterday and when it had gotten through with that suburb it inspected the intricacies and innermost workings of Oahu jail.

The twelve good men and true left the police station shortly after 1 p. m. and half a dozen hacks immediately headed for Iwilei.

A reporter got through the first gate with the crowd all right but "Alabama" Mitchell, the bailiff, soon stopped him and called the attention of E. Faxton Bishop, the foreman of the Grand Jury, to his presence.

The jury was evidently in no pressing need of reportorial service just then and the guileless twelve went their way alone.

"This jury is not acting for publication," said the foreman, "and they desire to have Iwilei strictly to themselves on this occasion."

From the "Hiram Bingham."

A brief letter, dated October 16, has been received from Mr. Walkup, who, on his little craft, the Hiram Bingham, was then at Ocean Island, after having finished a tour through the Gilbert group since October 14. His brief statement is, "At most islands, some encouragement; at two or three islands, discouragements." He reports that he has been out of supplies for several months, though in no danger of starvation, "but a home meal would be a treat." Ocean Island is brought into connection with the commercial world by its supplies of phosphate of lime, and two steamers of the Pacific Island Company were loading there when Mr. Walkup wrote.—Missionary Herald.

THE YOUNGER HOBSON'S HAZING.

Special and particular victims of the forms of hazing that prevail at West Point are those who bear distinguished names. There is Cadet Hobson, for instance, who is a brother of the hero of the Merrimac. He was called upon to read aloud to the upper classmen lengthy newspaper articles describing his brother's daring achievement, and at the end of each paragraph in sonorous tones that he had the honor of being the hero's brother. Then he was ironically applauded and politely requested to go out on the street and kiss all the lampposts. And the brother of his brother is said to have gone through all this huggermuggery without a murmur.

The last mail for the Coast this month left on the Coptic yesterday afternoon.
